Subject: Life after the pandemic

We are currently in a pandemic and many people across the globe have had their movement restricted, and their lives disturbed like never before.

Eventually, by taking measures including social distancing and testing, life will resume back to normal. That raises a new question, however: after this pandemic, what is the new normal going to look like?

What will go “back to normal” look like and what do you think will be different in the short run? What are the things that you can imagine or hope will change forever as a result of this phenomenon?

You can talk about the positive changes in medicine, science, politics, human interaction, or anything else that we can expect, hope for, or aspire to come out of these terrible times.

Present with passion and enthusiasm.
